Carole A. Steffens
Midland, MI

A serious pursuit of art occurred only after my retirement from full-time employment. With the instruction of many talented instructors, the encouragement of friends and family, and time to commit to it, watercolor painting has become a passion and focus for my life. I am drawn to the infinite beauty of nature and try to recreate the intricate details of flowers and birds as well as scenes from places we have visited. My work also includes drawings which I enjoy for the subtle shading which can be achieved in black and white. My hope is that the viewer will share my sense of wonder at the world around us and see anew the beauty of nature.
