Photography has intrigued me from a very early age. I find myself particularly drawn to nature photography. We are surrounded by so many colors, shapes, textures and variations in lighting from very bright and vibrant to very subtle and subdued. My focus is to capture some of that natural beauty that may be overlooked as we go about our busy lives.

I also find myself experimenting with portrait photography. It can be quite a challenge to capture open honest expressions while being conscious of such things as lighting and surrounding.
